Philadelphia.
TRADE A MARK.
BRANCH OFFICE
FERTIG BLOCK,
Titusville, Pa.
MANUFACTURERS OF LAP WELDED
Tubing & Casing
Both Plain and Galvanized,
for Oil and Salt Wells,
American Charcoal
Iron Boiler Tubes, Lap Welded Tubing for Steam and Water.

SOLE MANUFACTURERS OF
W. C. ALLISON'S
PATENT JOINT
Oil Well Tubing.
This Superior Tubing is furnished with heavy sockets, and is cut with a vanishing screw thread, corresponding exactly with the thread in the socket, so that when screwed up it has a bearing the whole length of the joint; and the absence of a deep thread on the tube at the end of the socket obviates the liability to break at that point from the vibration caused by the action of the pump.
Each length and socket is stamped with our trade mark, and is carefully tested before shipment with a hydraulic pressure of 1,200 pounds to the square inch.

TUBING AND CASING.

NATIONAL

BOSTON, MASS.
MANUFACTURERS OF
LAP-WELDED OIL WELL
Tubing & Casing.
We would call the particular attention of dealers and producers to this make of Tubing and Casing. One of the important features in the manufacture of our Tubing is, that the Lap and the Weld
are made perfectly straight, smooth and uniform, thereby giving equal and great strength to the tubing throughout.
Each joint carefully inspected, reamed at end, and proved with the sockets on at a hydraulic pressure of 1,200 pounds to the square inch before shipment.
Each length stamped with our trade mark,
Diamond "B."

PATENT STEEL JARS.
The undersigned hereby give notice to manufacturers and parties making, selling or using Drilling Jars made of wrought iron or steel combined, that by virtue of certain assignments duly recorded at the United States Patent Office, we own the sole and absolute right, title and interest in three patents for Drilling Jars; one granted to James C. Eastman, in July, 1867, and two to Edward Guilod, in May, 1868; said patents covering all Jars made of wrought iron and steel combined, and applied substantially in the manner represented in said patents and generally known as steel jars.

Griffin's Patent WATER PACKER!

This is one of the most useful Patents for oil operators ever invented. It has several advantages over any other Seed Bag or water packer in use 1st. It can be put down quicker and is instantly ready for use as there is no waiting for seed to swell, and by its quick action the well is kept clean. 2d. It can never fasten tubing or casing in a well so that it cannot be taken out readily.
We have taken the Agency and Manufacture of Ely's Patent Sucker-rod Adjuster.
We also furnish the Long Hook and Wood Connections, at Cost Price,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

The Destroyed Palaces.

THE TUILERIES.

This palace, which was on Wednesday last destroyed by the Commune, occupied the site of a rubbish shoot and some tilefields which existed in the time of Charles VI. (1476), and had furnished Paris with tiles for four centuries. From this circumstance its name was derived. In 1518 Francis I. purchased a house here for his mother, Louise de Savole, who found the air of the royal residence, the Palais des Tournelles, in the Marais, unwholesome. In 1525 this Princess gave the hotel des Tuileries to Jean Tiercelin, maitre d'hotel to the Dauphin. It subsequently became the property of Catherine de Medicis, who had the edifice just destroyed begun as a residence for herself in 1564. Here her work stopped, for being alarmed by an astrological prediction bidding her beware of St. Germain, and the Tuileries being in the parish of St. Germain l'Auxerrois, she fixed her abode at the Hotel de Soissons. Under Henry IV. the palace was enlarged by Ducerceau and Duperac, who raised two other ranges of buildings faced with composite pilasters, and erected lofty pavillions at each end. This King also began the long gallery along the quay.

LOUIS THE FOURTEENTH

caused Levan and d'Orbay to complete it, and to add an attic to the central buildings, but he soon after neglected the works and transferred his court to Versailles. The Regent, Duke of Orleans, resided at the Tuileries during the minority of Louis XV., but from that period till the forced return of Louis XVI. the families of persons officially attached to the court occupied it.

DURING THE REVOLUTIONS.

This palace was inscribed on almost every page of the history of the First Revolution. The mob entered it on June 20th, 1792, and on August 10th, of the same year, it was attacked and the Swiss Guards massacred. It was the official residence of the First Consul, and subsequently the imperial palace. In 1808 Napoleon began the northern gallery to communicate with the Louvre, also destroyed Wednesday. After the restoration the Tuileries continued to be the chief residence of the King and royal family. After the revolution of 1830, when the people attacked and took the palace (July 29,) Louis Philippe fixed his residence in it, and continued to inhabit it till the 24th of February, 1848, when it was again invaded by the people, and the King made his escape. By a decree of the Provisional Government, dated February 26th, 1848, which was never put into execution, this palace was to be thenceforth transformed into an asylum for invalid workmen. During and after the insurrection of June it was used as a hospital for the wounded. In 1849 the yearly exhibition of paintings were opened in it. Up to the fall of the Empire it was the official residence of the imperial family.

ITS EXTERIOR.

The extreme length of the facade was 330 yards, its breadth 36. The reconstruction of the southern portion of the palace, called the Pavillon de Flore, commenced a few years ago, was soon completed, and was remarkable for its rich sculpture. This and the adjoining edifices had been subjected to the process of washing with silicate of alumina, which hardened the soft stone used in the building. The other pavilion in the Rue de Pinoli, called Pavillon Marsan, was also reconstructed. The columns on the lower story of the central facade were Ionic; on the second, Corinthian; on the third, composite. Those on each side of the Pavillon de l'Horloge consisted originally of a long gallery to the south and the grand staircase to the north. Towards the garden vaulted arcades extended in front of these from the central pavilion, forming terraces on the top.

ITS INTERIOR.

The entrance to Louis Philippe's apartments when he was king was by the Pavillon de Flore. The room in which he consented to his abdication, and which was called the Grand Cabinet du Roi, still existed until yesterday. Some brief particulars concerning that event will be of interest, and we therefore give them: In the course of the night of February 23d barricades had been erected in all the streets of Paris. At eight o'clock in the morning M. Emile de Girardin, the chief editor of the Presse, arrived at the Tuileries, where he found M. Thiers, Odilon Barrot, De Remusat, Duvergier de Hauranne, and Lamoricière, apparently unconscious of what was going on. After a brief consultation these gentlemen hastily drew up a short proclamation, announcing the formation of a Thiers-Barrot Ministry, and the dissolution of the Chamber of Deputies. M. de Girardin immediately took it to the printing office of the Presse to have it printed. But the insurgents, when they learned its contents, ridiculed it and would not allow it to be stuck on the walls. M. de Girardin then returned to the Tuileries, and having previously informed Marshal Bugeaud of what had taken place, was admitted into the royal cabinet. The King was in an arm-chair; near the window M. Thiers and Remusat were leaning against the chimney-piece. "What is the matter, M. de Girardin?" asked the King. "Sire," was the answer, "your Majesty is losing most precious moments. If a bold measure is not at once adopted, in an hour royalty will be no more." These words created great astonishment. After a moment of great despondency the King said, "What is to be done?" "Your Majesty must abdicate," answered M. de Girardin. "Abdicate?" "Yes, sire, and confer the regency on the Duchess of Orleans, for the Duke of Nemours would not be accepted." The King then rose and said, "Gentlemen, do you wish me to mount on horseback." This was not approved of. M. de Montpensier stepped forward and asked the King to abdicate. The King replied, "I abdicate." "And is the regency of the Duchess of Orleans accepted?" asked M. de Girardin. At this moment the report of musketry began to be more distinctly heard; it became evident that the Tuileries might soon be attacked. "Go! go! M. de Girardin!" exclaimed the King. M. de Girardin obeyed, and attempted to reach the office of the Presse in order to have a proclamation printed with the greatest possible expedition. But finding his progress impeded by countless barricades and dense crowds of armed people, he returned to the Tuileries. The entrance was thronged with persons who had repaired thither to learn the real state of affairs. He was recognized by a few, to whom he hurriedly communicated the important news of which he was the bearer, whereupon they advised him to draw up the proclamation on the spot, which he did, and wrote several copies of it, which were passed from hand to hand, and despatched to be posted up. All this time the Chateau d'Eu, on the Place du Palais Royal, was being defended against a large number of insurgents by a handful of determined Municipal Guards and a small detachment of troops. Although about 8,000 men, consisting of infantry, cavalry and artillery, were stationed but a few steps off in the court of the Tuileries, no reinforcement was despatched to their assistance. The palace might have easily been defended, but the King, informed of the partial defection of the National Guards and of the troops, who had quietly surrendered their arms to the people, resolved not to resist, in the hope that timely resignation might remove any opposition on the part of the people to the throne. He therefore gave orders not to oppose any resistance to the people.

A few minutes afterwards the excited multitude penetrated into the court. The King resolved upon flight, and the monarchy of 1830 was no more. A few random shots were fired from the ranks of the insurgents, and shortly afterwards the abode of royalty was unresistingly invaded by the people, who were far from expecting so easy a victory. While the splendid saloons and chambers of the palace were thus receiving (not for the first nor last time) their revolutionary masters, a far different scene was progressing in the garden of the Tuileries. Persons stationed on the balconies of the Rue de Rivoli could see a mournful procession wending its way along the southern terrace of the garden. Louis Phillippe and his consort, after stopping a moment on the very spot where, fifty-six years before, Louis XVI. had been beheaded, retraced their steps to where carriages were stationed. The royal family entered the vehicles and immediately set off in the direction of St. Cloud, never to return.

The apartments which we spoke of above as the King's were once occupied by Marie Antoinette, who was beheaded, and Mme. Adelaide. The Prince and Princess de Joinville and their respective suites lodged in the same pavilion. The pavilion Marsan at the northern end, with part of the lateral gallery, which was called the New Gallery of the Louvre, was occupied by the Duchess of Orleans, the Count de Paris, the Duke and Duchess of Montpensier, and the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale. Up to the fall of the recent Empire, those State apartments were occupied by Napoleon and his consort, the Empress Eugenie.

The Future of France.

Editors Morning Herald:

Your timely remarks on the "Downfall of Paris," in Thursday's issue, which contain so many truthful, just, and appreciative ideas in reference to that unhappy people, induces me to improve the opportunity to offer the following extract from an article written immediately after the fall of Strasbourg and Sedan, but never before now made public:

"Without becoming the apologist of the disastrous mistake of Napoleon III. in leaving his sphere as a ruler and a statesman where he was everything to France, to assume the position of a military leader, for which neither nature, education, nor fate designed him, or in any degree desiring the present re-establishment of monarchy in France, I am still convinced that Republicanism, as we understand it, is not adapted to the temperament, the education, or the tendencies of the French people, and in this view I am confident of the support of every earnest and disinterested student of French history, from the commencement of the first empire to the present day.

To deny that Charles Louis Napoleon Bonaparte is fallible, is to deny his humanity, but to deny that with all his failings, and foibles, he (as a statesman) remains the ablest man in France, is to attempt, by a syllable of false rhetoric, to blot out the history of his life, and I should deem myself untrue to the Gallic activity, and Huguenotistic faith of my fathers, if I withheld my recognition of those masterly abilities which for eighteen years have harmonized the discordant elements by which his throne has, for that time, been surrounded and threatened.

It is true that the majestic dignity and and classic grandeur which distinguished the fall of the first Napoleon, as contrasted with the almost pusillanimous imbecility evinced at Sedan, elevates the first, whether on the field of Waterloo, the deck of the Bellerophon, or retrospectively striding o'er the ocean-girt rock of St. Helena, into an immortal hero, while the action at Sedan consigns the nephew (for a time only) to a position which invites the contumelious derision of an unkind and an unthinking world. But let us remember that the sanguinary plains of Waterloo, followed by the triumphal entry of the allied armies into Paris, was THEN felt to be as hopeless a conquest of France as the surrender of Sedan, Strasburg, and the investment, or even the conquest of Paris, with all their humiliating consequences is now, or ever can be.

Waterloo was indeed the action, but the triumphal return, and imposing mausoleum of the sacred ashes, now repo-ing on their sarchophagean bed, beneath the canopy of the Hotel des Invalides, was the RE-ACTION, which drew from the heart of generous France her willing tribute to heroism so congenial to her idealistic imagination.

No! To Frenchmen, the name of the hero of a hundred battles, is talismanic, deified, and enshrined in a halo of glory, whose effulgence transforms his very vices into virtues, and consigns his imperfections to eternal oblivion.

I venture the prediction that when this fratricidal strife is ended, when

"The harp that sounds in Tara's Halls,
Is silent hung on Tara's walls;"

when the shrill trumpet shall cease its peals to the demon of war; when unhappy, devastated, gory France, shall waken from her delirious dream, and return to the peaceful pursuit of progressive, as well as of intellectual freedom, then, sir, and not till then, we shall discover, that neither her exhaustless vitality, her indomitable energies, nor the genius of Napoleonism are extinct within her borders.

No, sir, as long as those ashes are allowed to repose in the "bosom of the French people," the genius of Napoleonism will be regarded by the great majority of that people as the most brilliant meteor in the refulgent galaxy with which her archives are replete, and I should not be surprised if the captive of Wilhelmsoe should yet emerge from his Nebuchadnezzarian retirement, a wiser man, and a better ruler for the mistake of Sedan."

Such, Messrs. Editors, are the sentiments expressed and written immediately after the fall of Sedan, when the sky of adversity lowered upon poor France. But, sirs, a brighter day dawns. Her true children have awakened from their infatuation, arisen from their lethargic slumber, and the downfall of rebellious, unstable, drunken Paris is but the first act in the unwritten drama of her future glory, for she will yet, like old Zion, emerge from her sorrows a chastened matron, and shine but the brighter for her late humiliation.

I am, gentlemen, highly gratified to find you (even from a Republican stand-point) entering into the true medium, or REAL causes of her troubles, and at the same time suggesting the remedy, for if the last few months of anarchy, bloodshed, and terrorism is not a sufficient proof of her inability to maintain self-government, it is useless to seek further.

Very respectfully,
VETERAN.

IT IS WELL.—Alexis, Grand Duke and the second surviving son of the Czar, will visit us, reaching New York early in September. The announcement that he would not come was cruelly and inexcusably false, and the author of it deserves the severest punishment. However, all is past now, and the hearts of the expectant multitudes may rest easy. It is hinted, we learn from the Evening Post, that Alexis will undertake an overland journey through our country, and leaving his fleet to pass around Cape Horn, rejoin it on the California coast, returning to European Russia through Asia, and thus making the circuit of the world. A grander tour could scarcely be imagined.

EVERY year on the 4th of July the "Canadian Annexation Society" meets at Niagara Falls. What its members do there is told by the following extract from a circular which the society has just issued:

Two delegates from each Congressional district in the United States and two delegates from each Parliamentary district in all the British provinces will compose the convention. As a striking illustration of the purpose of the convention, the "Old ship Monarchy," rotten, dismasted, with bulwarks stove in, and deepsided of its ornaments and gilding, will be sent over the Falls, to be dashed to pieces on the everlasting rocks of liberty beneath.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, May 26

The British Consul at Maricaibo has just arrived here, bringing intelligence that a wealthy Englishman, a brother of the American Consul at that place, has been arrested, placed in irons, thrown into prison, and it is believed he will be shot, the government refusing all applications of both the British and American Consuls for an interview with the prisoner. The British Consul declares that the arrest is unwarranted by any act of the prisoner.

The "Lost Cause" not Dead.

AUGUSTA, Ga, May 26

Jeff Davis arrived here last night, when he was serenaded at the Planters' Hotel, and to-day held a reception. Mayor Estes tendered him the hospitalities of the city. In response to cheers, Davis made his appearance on the balcony of the hotel and said that he recognized the peculiar claims Georgia had on him, and of himself upon Georgia, for in the ancient city of Augusta his father had identified himself with the revolutionary struggle for liberty. If the latest struggles for the principles of constitutional liberty had been a crime, it was his misfortune, for which he had fully suffered. Aware of the eagerness with which every word he might utter was watched for and misrepresented, he would be silent, not from apprehensions as to the result to him individually, but as his utterances were made to affect the interests of the Southern people. He did not conceive that the principles of the Lost Cause were dead, or that truth should remain crushed. He counselled fortitude and patience, believing the South could afford to be patient under her wrongs until returning justice achieved rights to every free man, a period to which he looked. With this feeling he was fearful to trust himself to speak, because he could not think one thing and speak another. He looked forward to the time when he might speak to his fellow-citizens as his heart moved him, and bade them farewell, expressing the hope that God would be with them.

Murderer Executed.

FONDA, N. Y, May 26.

Chas. Eacker was executed to-day for the murder of Thos. E Burdick. He maintained a firm demeanor throughout the proceeding. On the Sheriff asking him if he had anything to say why the sentence of death should not be passed, Eacker replied in a low tone of voice: Notwithstanding the sentence of the law, I am not guilty of the crime, but am willing to submit to it. After a pause of a minute he spoke to the Sheriff in a whisper, saying he did not want a cap drawn over his head. He was then told to rise, and stepping forward laid his hand on his coffin. The noose was then adjustad and his limbs bound with straps. At 1 p. m. the Sheriff again spoke to Eacker, asking him if he had anything further to say He replied in the negative. The Sheriff then cut the cord and Eacker was launched into eternity. He went up and descended with a heavy thud and swung to and fro for a few minutes, but there was no visible struggle.

Weather Report.

WASHINGTON, May 26.

The barometer continues to fall slowly on the Pacific coast and at the Rocky Mountain stations. The pressure has diminished from the Mississippi to the Atlantic coast, and is highest in South and North Carolina. The low pressure which existed Thursday from Lake Superior to Maine is now confined to the Eastern States. Light rains have fallen at most points from Iowa to Lake Huron and eastward to Virginia and Vermont. Partially cloudy and clearing weather has been reported from this region, and clear weather is reported from North Carolina and southward. Probabilities: It is probable that the barometer will continue low, with warm weather on Saturday in the Mississippi Valley and Southern Ohio, and cloudy and partly cloudy weather is probable from Wisconsin eastward to the Atlantic.

In General.

It is understood that the subject discussed in executive session to-day is connected with the Treaty of Washington, but the precise form of proposition was not ascertained. It is certain it elicited long and earnest debate, which was not terminated at adjournment. A number of Senators have left Washington for their homes within the last twenty-four hours, and as a result the Senate, late this afternoon, were scarcely able to preserve a quorum. In case of none to-morrow, measures will be required to secure attendance by sending the Sergeant-at-Arms after Senators within convenient reach. The Senate will meet at 11 o'clock to-morrow, but it is not certain they will adjourn on that day.

The Senate have ratified an additional treaty between the United States and Great Britain defining more clearly some of the provisions of the naturalization treaty.

Assistant Secretary of the Interior, Cowan, has returned to Washington and assumed his official duties.

The usual Cabinet meeting held on Tuesday will be postponed until Wednesday in consequence of the former being Decoration Day.

In the Criminal Court to-day the case of Representative Bowen, from South Carolina, was called up, but was postponed until Tuesday next.

"There is fighting in the remote parts of the city, and some new fires. Americans and their property are safe"

Governor Gaston, of Georgia, who arrived here yesterday, had an interview with the President this morning in which he said there was a good state of feeling among the better class of citizens to put down the Ku-Klux organizations

In the Christian Association Convention to-day, the Committee on Resolutions reported it was inexpedient to adopt the following resolutions relating to women's work, as the same is covered in a resolution of the Portland Convention; second, relating to the use of tobacco; third, relating to Paris; fourth, declaring to erect common schools, as the plan proposed does not seem to be sufficiently matured to admit action upon it; fifth, relating to Sabbath-schools recommended for adoption; sixth is recommended for adoption. The resolution read:

Resolved, That this Convention recognizes as a useful field labor for to master the large number of young men confined in jails, penitentiaries and reformatory institutions of the land.

G. McLean submitted resolutions recommending the second Lord's day of November next to be observed as a day of prayer by the United Associations, and that delegates be appointed to the world's convention at London, to be held next autumn. Adopted.

Subscriptions for the support of the Association received amount to $6,280. Upon discussion of morning topics, President Wannamaker stated he had no doubt that of the 100 associations which had disbanded during the year, at least nine-tenths had failed because of mistakes in management Seven hundred and seventy-six associations are on the roll, twenty-one own halls, and the one in which they are now holding this convention was a monument of what an association could do. There was not a merchant present who would not be bankrupt in six months if he allowed his business to be managed like some associations had been. He spoke of the value of the press, even if it misrepresented him. They should go to the papers and get them to publish articles in relation to their work. He urged that the fees should be low, so low that the poor might be liable to become members. He would not condemn fairs as a means of obtaining money, but his experience was that when the time and trouble was counted they were expensive, and with two exceptions lectures failed in Philadelphia The best plan in that city was the subscription plan. He cited a case in Philadelphia where they started out to obtain $10,000, and at the last meeting the managers reported over $100 in excess of the amount. He would rely mainly on the subscription plan, but urged them to stick to whatever plan they undertook, and not spend money till it was raised.

The Vice-President passed a quiet night, and sat up half an hour this morning. He is still very weak.

A deputation of the G T., who have been in session at Baltimore, reached this city to-day, and paid their respects to the President, Secretary Boutwell and other officials.

Desperate Fight With Indians.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, May 26.

A letter, dated on board the steamer Ida Rees, May 13th, gives the following particulars of a fight which recently took place near Muscle Shell, Montana, between a party of wood choppers and a band of Yankton Indians. A war party of Yanktons come to the river a few miles above here, a few days ago, and attacked three men, belonging to a party of wood-choppers. The men ran to a bend in the river and hid in the thick bushes, but their hiding place was discovered when a desperate fight took place, resulting in the death of one white man and eleven Indians. The reds numbered forty and left six of their dead on the field of battle, not having horses to carry them off The fight commenced at two o'clock in the afternoon and continued until dark, the men being entrenched in a heavy undergrowth and behind a large log, from which position the Indians found it impossible to dislodge them. The two survivors reached their camp in safety next morning.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate—Extra Session.

WASHINGTON, May 26.

Carpenter said he had nothing to do with starting the investigation, and denied the newspaper statement that he had been made a catspaw by Conkling. He had received anonymous letters threatening that the entire American press would be directed against him if he should proceed with the investigation. He, too, had incurred such displeasure for moving a resolution to commit the witnesses. He had never seen any other course taken in cases where witnesses refused to answer. As to the correspondents being in prison, they were furnished with the best rooms in the Capitol, where they fared sumptuously. Instead of this they should have been committed to the jail, as any justice of the peace would have done, for the witnesses were undoubtedly in contempt. If this had been the case the Senate would have received answers before now. Carpenter commented severely on the correspondents of the New York Tribune, and among other things, said that a malicious libel was perpetrated on him in a recent communication, purporting to give an account of the examination of Tinker, and which account Tinker had in a note to him denounced as untrue. He spoke of the morality of the press and wanted to know if correspondents of newspapers now would sanction what the Tribune correspondents had done, and at the close of their custody give them a complimentary dinner. The New York Tribune was an alias for Horace Greeley, who had befriended him by acts of kindness, but Horace Greeley is in Texas, delivering agricultural addresses, and has left the Tribune in control of a fop and pretender, White law Reed Carpenter continued at some length in opposition to the pending resolution to discharge the Tribune correspondents at the end of this session.

Fenton sent up a paper, which by request, he caused to be read, signed by Hinton, Boynton, Shaw and Knowlton, newspaper correspondents, saying that Tinker made the statements published in the New York Tribune dispatch, but the statements were not as bitter towards the committee as those Tinker made in their presence.

After further debate by Thurman and Davis, of Kentucky, the latter withdrew his amendment, which was to the effect that the discharge of witness should not offent legal proceedings.

Nye renewed it, and in course of his remarks said that it in the examination of Ku Klux outrages a witness had refused to testify instead of being furnished with comfortable quarters, he would have been sent to jail until he answered them. The correspondents of the Tribune are in contempt and are amenable to the law of the land.

Before proceeding further, Harlan moved that the Senate go into executive session, which was agreed to—yeas, 29; nays, 18.

New York News.

NEW YORK, May 26.

Extensive smuggling operations, extending over a period of several months and involving nearly $100,000, have recently been discovered by officers of the Treasury Department in this city It is alleged that some officers of ocean steamers are implicated, and several were arrested. Details of the case are withheld from the public.

Edwards and Collins, prize-fighters, were committed by Justice Dowling in default of $5,000 bail, in the Tombs Police Court this afternoon, to answer at the Court of Special Sessions.

The Court of Oyer and Terminer was crowded to its utmost extent this morning to witness the closing scenes in the Foster trial. District Attorney Gervin moved that the Court pass a sentence of the law on the prisoner. Judge Stewart said he would not submit a motion for arrest of judgment, but after judgment he would sue out a writ of error. Vanderpool, clerk of the court, asked Foster what he had to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon him. The prisoner said, in a clear, manly voice: I had been drinking a good deal that day and night, and did not know what I was doing. I had no intention of killing Putnam, and I am very sorry for it. Here for the first time during the long trial he became deeply affected and burst into tears. Judge Cardozo said he did not wish to say anything to hurt the prisoner's feelings. He had had a patient trial by an intelligent jury, most of his own selection, but the case was too clear to come to any other conclusion than the one arrived at. They recommended him to mercy, but that recommendation was for a higher tribunal to consider. He could hold out no hope whatever to him for commutation of sentence, and he should be prepared to meet his awful doom The sentence of the court is that he should be taken from here to the place from whi h he came, and on Wednesday of July next there to be hanged by the neck until he was dead, and may the Lord have mercy on your soul. The prisoner was then given in custody of the sheriff, and the court adjourned.

The police of the various districts, at noon to-day, made a raid on all policy shops throughout the city, arrested the keepers and seized the books. About one hundred places were thus visited, and the prisoners taken to the various police courts and held to await trial.

The National Convention of State Insurance Officers resumed its session this morning. A report was read urging the enactment of such laws as would secure safety to insured with the least inconvenience to companies. The necessity of having fire insurance companies rest upon a firm basis was dwelt upon. Fire companies were liable to be broken up by disasters in a single day, while life companies are not subjected to such calamities. For this reason the committee confined its attention to the subject of insurance against fire. It was urged that the public safety required that companies should not transact business in a State when the funds are locked up in other States, and various other suggestions were made for the consideration of the convention.

The troubles in the affairs of the Methodist Book Concern have again assumed a serious aspect, and it is very probable that the trial of various charges and counter-charges against the Book Concern and Dr. Lanahan will shortly be resumed. All the members of the Book Concern are here except J. Mason Cole, of Illinois, and Mr Vernon, of the St. Louis Conference A committee has been appointed to ascertain the necessity for holding a new court for the trial and to investigate the charges against Dr. Lanahan.

George Smally, the well-known London correspondent of the Tribune, arrived here in the steamship Rhein to-day He will return to Europe in a few days.

The Tribune to-day will publish the following: Mrs. Annie Claflin disappeared mysteriously Monday, but returned to her daughter yesterday morning. The following is the story of her adventures as she related it to a Tribune reporter: Last Monday afternoon I went to No. 15 East Thirty-eighth street, where my daughters, Mrs. Woodhull and Miss Jennie Claflin live. I rang the bell and asked for my husband, who came out and we walked together down the steps of the tunnel to the Fifth Avenue Railroad. At first I thought I would take a car, but afterwards decided I would walk. After my husband left me I went to see a Sister of Charity in Thirty-second street, where I staid until about dusk, and then started for home. When I got to the foot of the hill two men came up behind me and they threw me into a carriage. I could not see either of them, as they threw my shawl over my eyes and bound it there. One of them got into the carriage with me and we were driven rapidly away. When I asked him what he was going to do with me, he said: We know all about you; you are insane The man who told us to take you said you were making mischief between your two daughters, and he must put you out of the way, when I told him to let me out. He said if I did not be quiet he would throw me into the river, and so I said no more through fear. We rode, I should think, about two hours, when we got out. He delivered me, still blindfolded, to a woman who led me up three flights of stairs. Removing my shawl from my eyes she thrust me into a room and locked the door. It was a small room, about 8 by 10 feet in dimensions, with a skylight, but no windows, so that I could not see out at all. I stood there all night and no one came. Next morning when a woman came to bring me a slice of bread and cup of water, I tried to get her to come in and tell where I was and what they were going to do with me. On the third day she came in, and when I told her my story she said she was sorry for me and finally consented to aid me to escape if I would go blinded as I came. It must have been late that night when she came for me, and leading me to a carriage drove away with me. I asked her to leave me near the Harlem depot, and she did. It was then about 2½ o'clock this a. m. She said Blood has said he never would stop till d—d old —— was under the sod, I believe he was the one who had me carried off. Mrs. Claflin is about 70 years of age. The excitement caused by her abduction, together with insufficient food, has had a serious if not dangerous effect upon her health.

Funeral of Bishop Clark.

CINCINNATI, May 26.

The funeral of the late Bishop Clark, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, occurred from St. Paul's Church, this morning The attendance was large. At half-past ten o'clock the procession arrived at the church, and Rev. Dr. Merrick, of Delaware, Ohio, accompanied by Bishop James, of New York, passed up the aisle, the former reading the burial service of that church. The following divines were present: Dr. Harris, of New York; Dr. Reid, of Chicago; Dr. Frey, of St. Louis; Dr. Walden, of Cincinnati, and other distinguished clergymen. Then came the remains, borne by Dr. Hitchcock, Dr. Merrill, Dr. Ush, Revs. Von Cleve and Chalafant, and five prominent laymen. The funeral discourse was delivered by Dr James, who dwelt especially on the life and character of deceased, alluding to his early devotion to the cause of education, and his editorial labors, the result of which would make a respectable library in any christian family. His good judgment, wise counsel and faithful labors as a bishop; he read also a biographical sketch of deceased, speaking particularly of events that marked the last days of his life. Bishop Clark's last words before passing into an unconscious state were: "Gracious God! Blessed Saviour! Bless the Lord, oh my soul." Bishop James was assisted in the services by Bishop Morris, Dr. Briggs, Dr. Hatfields, and others. The exercises at the church concluded, the remains, accompanied by a large procession, were taken to Spring Grove Cemetery for interment.

Judge Sweeny, in the United States District Court, today, ruled that a United States Marshal could not refuse to serve a writ of subpœna because the costs were not secured.

One of the stills in Brooks, Johnson & Co's whisky establishment burst to-day, injuring a woman named Mrs McRoberts, and communicating flames to the premises which were extinguished with a loss of three thousand dollars.

Execution.

EVANSVILLE, Ind, May 26

Ben Sawyer, (colored) convicted of the murder of his wife, was hung at 11 o'clock this morning. He manifested no emotion and spoke with a firm voice, saying he had not had justice because he was not permitted to show the cause of his crime. He died in about 10 minutes.

Charged With Murder.

Robert S. Blakely, charged with the murder of John Donahue, of Buffalo, N. Y., was refused bail to-day after a very thorough examination before Justice Coomer.

Boy Missing.

A boy of 11 years disappeared suddenly last night, and is supposed to have been drowned from a skiff in the river.

Fatal Accident.

CLEVELAND, May 26.

A fatal accident occurred this morning near the Cleveland & Pittsburg railroad shops. A number of laborers were engaged in putting up some scales, when a shower compelled them to seek shelter. They ran across the track not observing the near approach of a freight train, and Wm. McIntosh was run over and instantly killed.

Base Ball.

The game of base ball to day between the Forest City club, of Cleveland, and the Kekionges, of Fort Wayne, resulted in the defeat of the former by a score as follows:

Forest City	4	0	2	0	1	0	0	0	0	—7
Kekionges..	3	1	2	2	0	1	1	6	0	—16

Exciting Race.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26

The third race, open to all except Lady Thorne and Goldsmith Maid, $1,500 to the first, $750 to the second, and $250 to the third. American Girl, Lucy and Mountain Boy were entered. The girl won three straight heats; time, 2 21 1-4, 2.21 1 2, 2.22 1 2; Lucy, second; Mountain Boy, third. During the last heat, when the horses were coming in on the home-stretch, a man giving his name as James Smith ran on the track, throwing his linen coat before the Girl, but failed in his object, as the mare kept steadily on. Smith was arrested.

What I Know About Farming.

HOUSTON, Tex., May 26.

Greeley, in reply to a large assemblage which called him out last night, said he came to Texas chiefly as a farmer, and what he had to say he had to say to farmers, and anything else would be aside from the purpose for which he had come. He earnestly hoped his visit would be the means of promoting a better understanding between the people of the North and South.

Want to Go to Work.

PITTSTON, Pa., May 26.

The men in the employ of the Pittston & Elmira Railroad Company, Damon and Buckley & Butler's coal companies, have resolved to resume work at the same terms given by the Pennsylvania Company to their men, as soon as operators will permit them to enter the mines. There is only one shaft idle in this place, and a resumption will probably take place before Monday next.

Two Editors Drowned.

MONTREAL, May 26.

George Speight and A Dodge, the former editor and the latter night editor of the Gazette newspaper of this place, were drowned yesterday while boating. The boat was drawn into the rapids and capsized

Virginia Election.

RICHMOND, VA, May 26

Returns from the State show that number party polled their strength, and politics were strictly regarded in township elections. The Republicans carried Charlottesville and Staunton.

The Household Tonic.—The efficacy of Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters as a specific for recruiting the enfeebled system and cheering the despondent mind has passed into a proverb. In the United States, where this marvelous tonic has borne down all opposition and eclipsed all rivalry, the demand for it has annually increased in a heavier and heavier ratio for years, until at last, the regular sales of this preparation exceeds those of all other stomachics combined. Eminent members of the medical profession and hospital surgeons without number, have candidly admitted that the pharmacopœia of the family contains no prescription that produces such beneficial effects in dyspepsia, general debility and nervous diseases, as Hostetter's Bitters. To use the language of a venerable physician of New York, "The bitters are the purest stimulant and the safest tonic we have." But the uses of the great vegetable antidote are much more comprehensive than such praise would imply. As a preparatory antidote to epidemic diseases, a genial stimulant, a promoter of constitutional vigor, an appetizer, a stomachic, and a remedy for nervous debility, no medicinal preparation has ever attained the reputation of Hostetter's Bitters. It is the household term of the American people, and in all human probability will be so for centuries to come. The magnates of science recognize its merits; and that it is emphatically the medicine of the masses, is proved by its vast and ever-increasing sales.

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD, TITUSVILLE, May 26, 1871—9 P. M.

The market opened a shade weaker this morning, and during the day a decline of about ten cents per barrel occurred on both sections of the road. Sellers, however, are holding for the best prices that have ruled during the past week, and not selling much oil. Upon the lower creek $1.90 was the ruling figure at the close, and $4.75 upon the upper creek for regular delivery and spot, though sales were made early in the day at prices slightly better than those mentioned.

We quote the following sales:

Fourth of July Celebration.

In response to the request of a number of citizens, Mayor Bates has called a meeting at the Council room on Monday evening next, to make suitable preparations for the celebration of the Fourth of July.

It is two years since any formal demonstration was made in Titusville, and we presume there will be prompt and hearty co-operation on the part of citizens generally to insure a successful celebration, and one that will attract hither large delegations of people from the surrounding country.

EXTRA HERALDS. — Although we printed large extra editions of the HERALD both on Thursday and Friday, they were insufficient to supply the demand, one gentleman yesterday handing us an order for one hundred copies after the supply was exhausted. Our report of the banquet and the reception, however, will both appear in the WEEKLY HERALD of Wednesday next, and a large extra edition will be printed for the accommodation of those who desire copies to send abroad.

REGRETS FROM SENATOR CAMERON.—The following letter of regret from the Hon. Simon Cameron, was received too late for insertion in our general report of the occasion referred to:

SENATE CHAMBER,
WASHINGTON, May 20, '71.

COMMERCIAL CLUB — Gentlemen:—I have your invitation to attend the dinner of the Commercial Club of Titusville, on the 24th inst. While it would afford me lively pleasure to meet you, public duties here, and domestic affliction at home, growing out of the critical illness of my daughter, will prevent me. But notwithstanding my absence, I sincerely trust the banquet may be a scene of enjoyment, and that the Commercial Club of Titusville may have a long, useful and prosperous life. Yours, truly,

SIMON CAMERON.

SIX sets of new sing'e harness and one open buggy to be sold at auction in front of Rice's store, at one o'clock this afternoon.

CHURCH RUN ITEMS.—Thompson & Cady well, No. 3, on the A. and J. Kerr farm, Church run, was struck last Thursday night, and is producing about eighty-five barrels per day. Two new wells on the west side of the Maguire farm, have proved dry holes. There will be another tested in a few days, standing to the east of these, and a few rods from Thompson & Cady well, No. 2, now producing ninety barrels per day.

WINDOW HANGINGS, ETC.—Mr. Morrell, agent for Walraven's celebrated Philadelphia house, can be found at Cushing's furniture store, Union Hall building, with a splendid stock of window hangings of every description. Mr. Morrell was the decorator of the Parshall House, and has filled many orders for private citizens throughout the oil region. He invites all to call and inspect his stock and styles.

R. T. HAZZARD'S DRY GOODS STORE.—We are glad to notice that friend Hazzard has recovered from his trifling indisposition. His doors were wide open yesterday, the store filled with customers, and he was selling dry goods cheaper than ever. Success to him.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.—The HERALD acknowledges the receipt of three large and elegant loaves of cake from the Parshall House, which are marvels of confectioners' skill, and if they prove half as toothsome within as they are attractive without, the original "pie" from which Mr. John Horner extracted a plum will have to pass into oblivion. The specimens referred to are a part of the ornamental delicacies that graced the Commercial Club banquet table, and which received the most favorable notice from the guests from abroad, who were not prepared for the superior display of viands upon that occasion, and which were prepared solely by the Parshall House.

AN OMISSION.—Among the guests to the Harley banquet on Wednesday evening, was C. L. Wheeler, Esq. By a singular inadvertance, his response to a volunteer toast was omitted. Mr. Wheeler's speech was one of the very best of the evening, reviewing as it did several interesting events connected with the early history of the Abbott and Harley pipe lines, and paying a high tribute to the character of Henry Harley, with whom the speaker was intimately associated at one time and knew his worth. We regret we are unable to give Mr. W.'s speech in full.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—The Rev. Mr. Beebe will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening, and deliver a lecture on the subject of "International Peace."

METHODIST CHURCH.—Services in the Methodist Episcopal Church, to-morrow morning an evening by the pastor, Rev. W. P. Bignell. Subject for the evening, "Jonah's Gourd; or, Bigotry."

ST. TITUS CHURCH ORGAN DEDICATION.—The Rev. Napoleon Mignault, assisted by a number of the Roman Catholic clergy of the neighborhood, will formally dedicate the new organ of St. Titus church, at half-past ten o'clock to-morrow morning. The ceremony promises to be very imposing. The Lambillotte High Mass will be celebrated with a full orchestra, and Coleman's brass band.

ANOTHER flowing well was struck on the Emery, Patterson and Caldwell lease of the David Kerr farm, Church Run, yesterday. It is owned by G. W. Mettler, of Thompson's Mills, and promises to be one of the best so far found in that district.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH. — Services morning and evening, at the usual hours. Sunday school immediately after morning service.

CHOICE strawberries, just received at Shank's. Also, cherries, gooseberries, currants, asparagus, radishes, lettuce, cucumbers, and all kinds of vegetables.

The Recent Explosion of Gas on Church Run.

The recent explosion of gas on Church Run is useful in one respect, as it affords food for reflection on the nature of explosions of hydro-carbons. We are surrounded with one of the most valuable mineral products of the earth, which is assuming a position in the commercial world both for heating and illuminating purposes, second only to that of coal, and it is well to educate the public mind up to a point which will insure immaculate safety both in its handling and in its manufacture. There is a wide-spread misapprehension regarding the danger of explosions from hydro-carbons, and the conditions necessary to cause their explosion, or even their ignition. In the first place heat alone, even a heat sufficient to melt iron, will not cause an explosion of any hydro-carbon. A certain amount of oxygen must always be combined either in the liquid or gaseous state, before even combustion will be the result. For instance, common city gas, which is one of the hydro-carbons, will not burn without a combination with the oxygen contained in atmospheric air. In order to effect an explosion of this it requires to be mixed with twice its bulk of oxygen, and as there is only one part of oxygen in every five parts of air, it would require ten cubic feet of air to be mixed with each cubic foot of coal gas, to form an explosive mixture. It will then go off with the slightest spark. Petroleum vapor requires a much larger amount of oxygen to form an explosive compound. It differs from coal gas in this particular, that whereas on the one hand coal gas is lighter than air, which can readily be perceived in the rapid ascension of a balloon filled with it, on the other hand petroleum vapor is almost four times heavier than air, and descends and gathers on the surface of the ground. It requires one hundred cubic feet of air, to be mixed with one cubic foot of petroleum vapor, before an explosive mixture is formed, which will go off instantaneously with explosive force when an ignited match is applied. This explains the cause of the explosion on Church Run; the surrounding atmosphere was very still, and the gas from the well had become mixed with it in the above proportion, and all that was necessary was a spark from the smouldering embers under the boiler to set it off. If a cellar or room contains 2,000 cubic feet of air, and twenty cubic feet of gasoline vapor be introduced, and is allowed to remain there until it becomes thoroughly mixed, the consequence of applying a lighted match will be a terrific explosion.

If it were possible to introduce oxygen or atmospheric air into an oil well, so that the gas in the well would mix with it in this proportion, the slightest spark would cause an explosion infinitely greater in extent and more effective in its results than could be accomplished by any ordinary means. No petroleum or burning fluid, therefore, is explosive until it is mixed with atmospheric air or oxygen. Certain charlatans who prey upon popular ignorance recommend light and volatile oils containing benzine for illuminating purposes by simply setting fire to them, and asserting that they cannot be exploded. This is very reprehensible. The reason why they are dangerous is that they will vaporise at the ordinary temperature of the atmosphere, and become mixed with the air in proportions conducive to explosion. The way to test a safe kerosene is to pour some of it upon water just a little hotter than the finger can well bear. If the oil is safe it will only flash, but not catch fire, but if it is unsafe, it will immediately ignite. Any kerosene or burning fluid, which will ignite at a lower temperature than 110° Fahr., is unsafe, and it is illegal to sell it for illuminating purposes. All oil which will not catch fire below 110° may be considered safe, as no vapor can be given off at the ordinary temperature of the atmosphere. Some oils will, when mixed with porous material, such as rags, saw-dust, &c., slowly absorb oxygen from the air, and when piled up in a close place, will heat and catch fire. Mineral oils, however, will not do this, and refined or low-gravity petroleum may therefore be recommended as the safest oil either for illuminating or lubricating purposes, when it is properly manufactured. Boiled linseed oils, varnishes, &c., all slowly absorb oxygen, and too much care cannot be exercised in their handling, as they will spontaneously ignite; whereas, this is altogether impossible with petroleum.

ANIMAL SAGACITY.—There is a horse in Pithole, owned by Mr. Ready, which cannot be shod on one of his hind feet while standing, and has to be thrown by means of a rope to the floor, and shod while lying down. Mr. Overhine, the blacksmith who has always shod the horse, says that whenever the horse has been shod on that particular foot while standing, he has been attacked with a cramp in that limb. On Thursday Mr. Ready took the horse to Mr. Overhine's for the purpose of being shod, when a rope was sent for, as usual, to throw the animal. Upon the rope being brought, and while preparations were being made to throw him, the horse turned his head, and, catching sight of the rope, and knowing its purpose, immediately laid down of his own accord, and lay upon his side quietly until the foot was shod.

REAL ESTATE.—Mr. J. N. Pew, office Odd Fellows' Block, offers for sale some valuable real estate in different parts of the city. His advertisement will be found in another column. By an unfortunate jumbling of types yesterday we made Mr. Pew offer lots having a frontage of four and six feet. It should have read sixty and forty-five feet. If real estate advances much more, four and six feet lots will be all any one can buy.

LARGE REFINERY.—Messrs. Lockhart & Frew and Vandergrift & Foreman on Thursday commenced work on a refinery at Sibleyville, one mile above Oil City, which, when completed, will have a capacity of three thousand barrels of refined oil per day. The works will cover an area of thirteen acres, and will be the largest refinery in the country.

THE Broadway Minstrel Combination give two concerts June 31 and 5th, at the Parshall Opera House. See advertisement.

TO THE TRADE.—We have on hand and are receiving in store, a large stock of oil well tubing (thoroughly tested), oil well casing from 3¼ to 6¼ inch inclusive, and all sizes of pipe from one-eighth to eight inches in diameter, both black and galvanized, which we offer at the lowest market price.

Our ware-house on Mechanic street, Titusville, is established to insure dispatch in deliveries, and for the convenience of dealers.

FRESH mackerel, halibut, whitefish and trout at Shank's fish market.

Varieties.

—Fruit-eaters are growling in Oil City because strawberries are selling for thirty cents a quart. In this city, where carloads are received daily, they are considered cheap at fifty cents.

—The showers yesterday added a visible tinge of green to the woods, and nature generally is putting on her fashionable summer suit of green and velvet, trimmed with flowers.

—The music furnished by Wahle's Band at the Harley banquet was not only first class, but appropriate to the occasion. The toast to the city of Titusville was followed by "Home, Sweet Home"; the Oil Creek and A. R. R, by "Riding on a Rail"; the Oil Region and its resources, by "I dreampt that I dwelt in Marble Halls"; while interspersed with the speeches of the New York and Boston guests were the familiar airs of "Boston Girls, ain't you coming out to-night," "Walking down Broadway," "Love among the Roses," etc.

—The owners of buildings in process of construction are forced to employ night-watchmen to keep lightning-rod men from turning their houses into iron-clads, during the night.

—Quilp, who by mistake sat down in his wife's lap, instead of the chair by her side, at the ball Thursday night, says she wore a moire antique silk when she entered the room, but it was shortly after sat-in.

—Watered silks were the prevailing styles at the close of the C. C. reception, by those not having covered carriages awaiting them.

—Mrs. Sampson Post, of East Sandy, is indignant because she was not invited to the recent ball in this city. She says she had got up a "rig" for the occasion, had the bald spot on her head shingled, and was otherwise ox fat (aux fait), and would have made a fox pass (faux pas), but didn't receive the anagram card of the C. C.'s.

—That wild fox that "dug his hole unscared" on the banks of Oil Creek centuries ago (where Titusville now stands), was on Spring street, yesterday, cooped up by a Pine Creek trapper, who had pursued him to his lair.

—A new telegraph line has been laid from this city to Church Run by the Western Union Telegraph Company, and in a day or two an office will be opened upon the Kerr farm, near Emery Bros. office, on Church Run.

—The perambulating astronomer with his mitrailleuse was upon the streets again last evening trying to get the range of the moon. As a gunner, however, he would not do for a Quaker battery of hollow logs, for no sooner would he get the range of distance, give his piece the right degree of elevation and tell the moon-starers to fire (for ten cents), than the moon would be out of range.

—The latest song is entitled "Look me in the eye, Johnny," and will be followed by another, entitled "Take a squint at my nose, Bill." Neither refer to members of the Good Templar organization.

—The latest musical sensation was the appearance of two female minstrels upon our streets last evening, one being a skillful manipulator of horse hair, and the othes dexterously clawed a harp of a thousand strings. After rendering a few airs, the conch-shell was circulated, the crowd shelled out, and the musicians moved off, followed by a procession of men and boys similar to that which marked the advent of the first woman into Pithole.

—The vicinity of the new office of Smith & Taylor, on Washington street, opposite the Parshall House, presents a lively appearance evenings, the warm weather causing the petroleum bulls and bears to paw up the ground and rub around the telegraph poles in that vicinity, and giving to the Exchange rooms opposite a partially deserted appearance.

—The policemen's annual ball, last evening, was numerously attended, and passed off successfully.

—In case of fire among the dwellings on "Inspiration Point," at the head of Franklin street, the fire company propose to "take suction" from the clouds, to save distance and hard pumping from the street below.

—The track of the O. C. & A. R. R. for half a mile towards Miller farm, was lined with young men on Thursday night last, who were awaiting the arrival of the 9:15 train, which contained an invoice of lavender kids for Carter & Co. It was also feared an attempt to "Filkins" the express messenger would be made at Miller farm.

—The special train over the Union and Titusville Railroad that brought the Eastern guests of the Commercial Club, made the trip in exactly forty-two minutes, which is good time for a new road. The regular time for passenger trains is one hour and twenty-five minutes.

—Major Mills commenced showing the citizens of Franklin what he knows about hotel keeping on the 25th inst. The new hotel over which he presides is one of the finest buildings in the State.

—Bed bug tournaments are in fashion now in the old rookeries known as second rate hotels. The insects are harpooned like suckers, these moonlight nights, while gamboling on the festive (head) board.

—Last night was the first of the season where it was a delight to kick off the "kiverlid," and dream the happy hours away, until daylight and fly-time set it.

—It is rumored that a squad of rock smashers from the geological department of the Smithsonian Institute will soon commence knocking about in the petroleum region, looking after signs of the trilobite, the icthyosaurus, the megatherium great American flea, of the red sandstone period, and other insects that used to make it lively for the primeval operators of this section. They will call upon our citizens and classify the bricks usually carried in hats, for such as desire it.

—The Petroleum Centre Record says: "Quite a number of our citizens were in attendance at the Commercial Club Reception, at Titusville, last evening. They report it as having been a grand affair. The Jenkins of the Titusville HERALD does up the Commercial Club Reception in grand style. The description of the toilettes worn by the ladies would do credit to Mme. Demorest's fashion magazine."

PRESBYTERY OF ERIE.—This body will meet in the Presbyterian Church of this city, on Tuesday evening next, at 7½ o'clock. Since the union of the two branches of the Presbyterian Church this body now numbers some seventy delegates. It is probable that a sermon will be preached Tuesday. The Presbytery will remain in session till Wednesday evening.

POSTAL NOTICE.—The through bags from the N. Y. & Erie Railway and the Philadelphia & Erie Railway, which have heretofore been received at 8:00 p. m., now reach this city at 5:20 p m, coming down from Corry on freight train No. 20. Until further notice the office will close at 8:00 p. m., which is two hours and a half after the last mail for the day arrives.

REPLY OF THE MAYOR.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, May 26, 1871.

GENTLEMEN:—In response to above call I cheerfully coincide with your request and designate Monday night next, at the Council Room, for a preliminary meeting. Yours respectfully,

F. BATES, Mayor.

Exchange Hotel at Franklin.

From the Franklin Citizen.

On the first day of last August the first blow was struck toward the erection of the new Exchange Hotel, in this city, and under the direct and able supervision of our fellow-citizen, James W. Brady, the work has been prosecuted with untiring energy, and to-day the hotel building stands nearly finished, the finest structure in the city, and a monument to the enterprise of the proprietors, F. W. and J. L. Mitchell and the Messrs. Plumer,

The building is completed, with the exception of a few finishing touches, now being given the interior, and will be ready for the reception and accommodation of the public next Monday, May 29th.

The furniture of the hotel is of the best quality, the carpeting on the parlors especially, being of the finest and most elegant style we have ever seen, and the sleeping rooms are furnished in a manner never before equalled or approached in the oil regions, or surpassed by the best hotels in more pretentious cities. Elegantly finished and furnished in every part, when its doors are opened to the reception and entertainment of the public, one of the great wants long felt in this city will be satisfied, and the large patronage it is sure to receive, by the additional inducements it presents to business men and oil operators, to make this city their headquarters, will amply repay our citizens for the interest manifested in securing its erection.

Major S. M. Mills, the most popular landlord in this portion of the State, and a general favorite with the people of the people of the oil regions, has leased the Exchange, and under his supervision nothinn that can add to the convenience and comfort of guests will be neglected. His good-natured countenance is in itself enough to make all around him feel contented and happy.

Major Mills has secured as assistants Mr. Charles Wood, who will be in charge of the office of the hotel, and Mr. G. D. Suplet, late one of the proprietors of the Spottswood Hotel, Richmond, Va., which was destroyed by fire in January last. They are gentlemen in every respect, and we congratulate the Major in having secured so capable and energetic assistants.

All the appointments of the hotel will be in accordance with the elevated and correct ideas of the proprietor.

Since writing the above we learn that F. W. Mitchell, Esq., has purchased the entire interest of J. L Mitchell, Esq., in the hotel building, and now owns two-thirds of the entire property, and proposes to lay out and adorn the grounds in the rear of the hotel in splendid style. This project is in keeping with the public spirit and enterprise which has marked the course of Mr. Mitchell during his residence in Franklin.

We endorse all that our neighbor says in commendation of Major Mills, and congratulate the citizens of Franklin upon his acquisition. The Exchange is properly described as one of the best hotels in the country. It has been erected at a cost of $150,000, the stock being chiefly subscribed by Messrs. F. W. and John Mitchell and Arnold Plumer, who have spared no expense to make the house complete in all its appointments. Gas is introduced through the whole house and hot and cold water in nearly every room. The most perfect arrangements are made for utilizing steam in the laundry and kitchen. All of the "standing furniture" was furnished by the liberal owners. The Major puts in the linen, crockery, cutlery, etc., at an expense of $10,000. Our townsman, Mr. Charles R. Church, had the order for supplying the crockery and has "filled the bill" to the Major's entire satisfaction. The opening of the house on Monday will be a notable event for Franklin and gratifying to the traveling public of this entire section.

PEAS, string beans, cabbage beets, carrots and all kinds of vegetables received daily at Shank's.

LOCAL NOTICES.

STRAWBERRY SHORT CAKE.—Take one pound flour, one tea-spoonful salt, mix stiff with cold water, work and wash one-half pound of butter, and divide it into four equal parts; roll out the dough to about one-quarter inch in thickness, spread one part of the butter on it, and dredge it over with Banner Baking Powder; then roll up and out again, and repeat the rolling, spreading and dredging, until the four parts of butter have been used. One measure of the powder is the proper quantity to use, sprinkling it lightly over the butter each time; when it melts it will cause the powder to effervesce and puff up the paste; bake in jelly cake pans, in a very hot oven; when done, place in layers, covering each one with strawberries, which have previously been sugared and mashed. Each can of the Banner Baking Powder contains a small measure, to be used even full. Prepared only by Jesse H. Lippincott, Corner Smithfield street and Second avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., and for sale by dealers in Titusville.

Is on the ice question again this season, and succeeded in putting up

Seven Hundred Tons of Ice

Not figures, but ice, and intends not to be undersold. Spring ice will be sold from three-fourths to one cent per pound; Creek ice from forty to fifty cents per one hundred pounds. Parties wishing ice by the ton will be supplied at liberal rates. I will deliver ice now at any time that parties desire it. All persons commencing with me the first of the season will be carried through if there is any ice to be had this side of Buffalo. As this is supposed to be a free country, I have taken this method to inform the public that I have the ice. It is now for them to select the man to furnish them. This thing of drumming and harassing a man at every point and corner to take ice is an insult to a free man and an outrage to humanity. Office first door east of L. F. Sourbier's grocery store, and west of the Catholic Church on Spring street.

Orders for ice left at H. A. Hill's boot and shoe store, opposite the American Hotel, will be promptly attended to, if written on the slate furnished there. mch10-tf

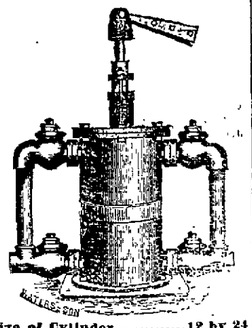
The Largest and Best Gas Pump in Use.

160 sold in 90 days, and give entire satisfaction.



Size of Cylinder.....12 by 24
Size of Valves.....3 inches
Weight of Pump.....450 lbs

This Pump is not excelled for durability, simplicity and workmanship, and creates a greater vacuum with 30 to 40 per cent less power than any now in use. This Pump has Steel Spring Rings so constructed as to create a very slight friction, and are self-packing. The valves and parts are large, to admit of a free suct on and discharge of the gas. The valve seats are protected by a leather gasket on the valve to obviate any wear to the valve seat or valve.

Explanation of Cuts.

No. 1— represents the Joint complete. No. 2—A longitudinal sectional view of a full Joint, showing the position of the wood in the socket when wedged, a glance at which must convince the most skeptical of the superiority of this Joint over any other. No. 3—A view of the end of the Rod, when turned ready for the Socket to be driven on, with the slot for the wedge and the wedge about being entered. No. 4—Represents the end of the wood, and shows the proper way to saw the slot (across the grain) into which the wedge is to be driven.

The above description and accompanying cuts, will enable any skilled person to make connection at the wells in a much shorter time than can be done with any other Rod, all the tools required being a small fine saw, one of our hollow augers and a few of our wedges. The wedges can be procured at any hardware store, grains.

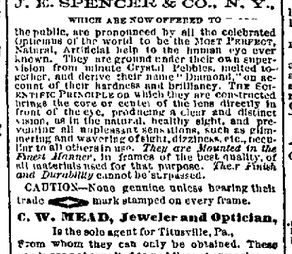
MONEY CANNOT BUY IT!

For Sight is Priceless!



THE DIAMOND GLASSES,

MANUFACTURED BY

J. E. SPENCER & CO., N. Y.,

WHICH ARE NOW OFFERED TO ——

the public, are pronounced by all the celebrated Opticians of the world to be the MOST PERFECT, Natural, Artificial help to the human eye ever known. They are ground under their own supervision from minute Crystal Pebbles, melted together, and derive their name "Diamond," on account of their hardness and brilliancy. THE SCIENTIFIC PRINCIPLE on which they are constructed brings the core or center of the lens directly in front of the eye, producing a clear and distinct vision, as in the natural, healthy sight, and preventing all unpleasant sensations, such as dimming and wavering of sight, dizziness, etc., incident to all others in use. They are Mounted in the Finest Manner, in frames of the best quality, of all materials used for that purpose. The Finish and Durability cannot be surpassed.

CAUTION—None genuine unless bearing their trade mark stamped on every frame.

REMOVAL!

The undersigned would respectfully announce to his friends and customers and the public generally that he has rented the store No. 35 West Spring street, lately occupied by Tinker & Co., as a

BOOT AND SHOE STORE,

to which he will remove on April 3d, and where he will hereafter be happy to receive his customers, assuring them that he has greatly enlarged his stock with the newest, nicest and best in the

and he will sell at the very lowest prices. Grateful for the very generous patronage bestowed on him in the past, it will be his endeavor to merit and attain it also in the future.
